Does Virtue
Exist?: Aristotle
and the Challenges of Social Psychology

Wednesday, Oct. 23

1:30-2:30 p.m. • Room A-321

Dr. Marcella Linn is an instructor of philosophy at Loyola University Chicago. Her research interests are in Aristotle's ethics and moral psychology. Her current research combines interpretative work on Aristotle and recent findings in social psychology, addressing several areas in ethics such as moral luck, the empirical adequacy of virtue and moral development.

Students are welcome and encouraged to attend this presentation!
